Deadheat for supervisor to be settled Thursday

By ELLIS CUEVAS
The counting of 43 affidavit votes tonight could break a tie in a deadheat race Tuesday for Hancock County District Three Supervisor.

In unofficial returns Tuesday night, incumbent District Three Supervisor Roger Dale Ladner and challenger Jerry Medford tied with 1138 votes each.

Two other incumbents Supervisors were defeated in Tuesday's Democratic Primary election in unofficial returns.

District Five Supervisor James N. (Jimmy) Travirca received 671 votes as he was unseated by Michael (Mike) Ladner who received 775 votes.

Travirca, who was elected board president when A.A. (Dolph) Kellar resigned after being defeated in the first primary, is completing his fourth term as supervisor.

Challenger Robert (Pete) Peterson defeated incumbent District One Supervisor Bert Courge 984 to 866. Courge is serving his third term in office.

The Democratic Executive Committee began certifying the affidavit votes on Wednesday morning in preparation for tonight's tally to possibly determine the winner in the District Three Supervisor's race.

The precincts and number of affidavit ballots to be checked in District Three reported Tuesday night were: Crane Creek, 3; Standard, 7; Dedaux 5; North Bay West, 19; and Diamondhead 9.

In commenting on the tied vote count Tuesday night, challenger Jerry Medford stated, "I think the people want fairness and they want someone to talk to when they need it."

"The people have indicated they are ready for a change to good positive government, and they all expect that, and I have talked to a lot of people," Medford continued.

Ladner on Wednesday said, "Well, I figured the election would be close, but I never expected a tie. I am sure

Mr. Medford and I are both anxious to get this over with." (Meaning the affidavit vote count tonight).

In commenting about the affidavit votes Ladner stated, "Percentage-wise, I think we have an equal chance. We ran almost 50-50 in the Bay St. Louis box." Ladner referred to North Bay West as being up-for-grabs with 19 affidavit votes.

Ladner continued, "I was really nervous about the whole thing last night but then I prayed about it and I asked God to do whatever was best for my family and me and the people of Hancock County. It's in his hands, and whatever happens I'll live with it."

Ladner added he felt Medford was 'a good man' and he would support him any way during a transition if Medford wins.

Peterson upon hearing the results from the final precinct stated, "I would like to thank the people because they did this (his victory), and if I win in November I'll be ready to go to work."

Among the many congratulating Peterson on his primary victory was Courge.

In defeat Courge said, "I have served the people for 12 years and I attempted to do the best job I could do. I would like to thank the people who supported me over the years and want to congratulate Mr. Peterson."

Bennett wins constable nomination

By ELLIS CUEVAS
In unofficial returns, Margaret (Wootsie) Tate leads Lawrence Holiday by 44 votes for the Democratic nomination for Senate District 47.

The District includes Leetown and Crane Creek Precincts in Hancock County and Pearl River and Stone County.

Tate, House of Representatives District 108 member, tallied 7,970 votes to Holiday's 7,926 votes in the tight race.

The Hancock County vote favored Holiday 312 to Tate's 283.

In the race for House of Representatives District 106, Incumbent Curtis Holston edged challenger Howard L. Ladner Jr. 4,200 to 3,810 in unofficial returns.

The precincts of Standard, Flat Top, Lee Town and Crane Creek in Hancock County voted for that state position as well as Pearl River and Harrison Counties.

Ladner led in Hancock County 831 to 341.

In a race for Constable West in Hancock County, District Two incumbent Constable Gary Lynn Bennett of Pearlinton defeated Waveland resident Harry (Steve) Garber 1,883 votes to 1,702 unofficially.

The outcome was uncertain as the returns for the constable position were announced. Bennett captured 12 of the 16 boxes in the half-county race.

Bennett will face Independent J.J. (Larry) Peterson in the November General election.

In the state races, Hancock Countians voted along the lines of the wishes of other Mississippians.

Unofficial returns for governor were Ray Maybus 5,437, Mike Sturdivant 2,290; attorney general, Mike Moore 6,139, Dale Danks 1,495; State Treasurer, Marshall Bennett 5,314; William Gilbert 2,017; State Auditor, Pete Johnson 3,848, Al Gary 3,528.

A precinct by precinct unofficial vote count for Hancock County is on Page 6-A of this issue.

Questionable ballots crucial in tied supervisors contest

BY DENA BISNETTE

The Hancock County Democratic Executive Committee will meet at 6 p.m. Thursday to certify second primary votes, including 43 affidavit votes that will decide a tie in the Beat Three supervisor race.

The two candidates involved in the tie, incumbent Roger Dale Ladner and challenger Jerry Medford, will have to wait until Thursday night before they find out who won the primary.

Even after the tie is broken, the campaign will not be over for the primary winner because he will face a Republican candidate, Michael Anthony, in the November general election.

When the regular ballots were counted Tuesday, Ladner and Medford had each received 1,138 votes.

However, the 43 affidavit ballots remained to be counted.

"I've been in political office or involved in politics all my adult life, and the closest I've ever seen to this was a one-vote deal," Hancock County Circuit Clerk John Rutherford stated Wednesday morning.

Rutherford said he had once seen former supervisor A.A. Kellar win an election by only one vote, but he had never seen a tie.

Hancock County Democratic Executive Committee President Hilda Bourg said a recount of all the votes in Beat Three, not just the affidavits, is likely.

"If they (the two candidates) don't ask for a recount, I'll request one," Bourg said.

She stated that because the election results had been so close, she

Three adults arrested, three juveniles detained in thefts

BY DENA BISNETTE

Three adults have been arrested and three juveniles taken into custody in connection with theft of a boat motor and attempted theft of a second motor from the Diamondhead Yacht Club area.

According to Hancock County Sheriff's Department Investigator Glenn Strong, Charles E. Woods, 21, of 338 Grayson Ave., Pass Christian, along with Kevin L. Harrison, 18, of 215 Demetz St., Pass Christian, and Leonard Brown, 18, of 351 Saucier Ave., Pass Christian, were charged with grand larceny.

Strong said Brown and Harrison and one of the three juveniles had apparently taken an outboard motor from a boat at about 1:30 a.m. Sunday when their vehicle was stopped by Diamondhead Security and the two men were arrested on a charge of possession of burglary tools.

The investigator said Woods and the other two juveniles were apparently left on foot in a wooded area and Woods was arrested at about noon Monday.

An apparent theft of a second motor, found disconnected from the boat it had been on but lying nearby, had been abandoned, Strong said.

Bond on the three adults was set at $5,000 each and the juveniles, all 17-year-olds from the Pass Christian area, were turned over to youth court authorities.

Strong is in charge of the investigation, which is continuing.

A place is vacant in our home which never can be filled.

Some may think you are forgotten though on earth you are no more, But in memory you are with us as you always were before.

We have only your memory, dear Father, to cherish our whole life through.

State unemployment remains unchanged

JACKSON—The July jobless rate for Mississippi remained at 9.7 percent, according to Mississippi Employment Security Commission Executive Director Thomas H. Dyson.

Even though the rate was unchanged from one month ago it was 3.4 percentage points below the 13.1 percent reported July 1986. Seasonal increases in agricultural employment were equal to decreases in nonagricultural employment to net the stable employment level during July.

Place of residence employment for July stood at 1,049,700 in a labor force of 1,162,300. Employment remained at the same level in July as in June, but was 23,400 above employment reported in July 1986.

Manufacturing establishments provided 221,400 jobs. Nonmanufac-turing businesses provided 629,600 jobs in July. Manufacturing jobs decreased seasonally 2,500 from one month ago and 100 from July, 1986. Nonmanufacturing provided 10,900 more jobs this year than one year ago.

The monthly decrease of 2,200 was caused by further decreases in public school employment and summer youth employment programs being smaller than the decreases in education.

There were 115,000 claims filed in July 1987 as compared to 116,697 during June and 162,929 one year ago. There were 9,364 job openings received in July compared to 9,178 last month and 11,489 one year ago. Of those received 7,521, 7,577 and 8,806 were filled by local Employment Service Offices.

Right-of-way purchases for 603 four-laning should begin by January

By BRENDA HEATHCOCK

The last document needed to complete the environmental impact study of the effects of adding two more lanes to Highway 603 is finished.

"We have received the noise study and the environmental impact study is being assembled," according to Southern District Highway Commissioner Bob Joiner.

Joiner said a date for a location hearing on the four-laning project should be scheduled within the next two weeks.

"If we receive location approval as expected, we can begin buying right-of-way parcels by the first of the year," Joiner added.

No dates on when site preparation for the additional lanes will begin or projected paving dates were available.

"We are fighting a dollar battle every day and are just taking it one step at a time," he said.

"We already have funding to buy right-of-way parcels and will be asking local legislators to help us secure additional funding needed for the project," Joiner said.

"I think we will be successful," he added.

Bay St. Louis Greyhound bus station closed indefinitely

By BRENDA HEATHCOCK
The Bay St. Louis Greyhound bus station is closed.

A note on a drop box for packages informs patrons to leave packages in Gulfport until further notice.

A single suitcase tagged as property of a Florida woman is outside of the station in an unlocked luggage box.

According to the telephone company, the phone at the Greyhound office has been disconnected.

There is not any notice at the station informing residents of the closing of the station or what to do if they need to take a bus trip.

Former commission agent Mel Rabateau says she resigned and new agents are being sought.

Shaun Crawley, marketing director for Southeastern Greyhound, confirmed the company is currently seeking a commission agent for the Bay St. Louis station.

"We will continue to serve the community as a flag stop until a new agent is found and passengers boarding a bus in Bay St. Louis will be ticketed at the next stop," Crawley said.

"With the recent merger between Greyhound and Continental Trailways bus line, we will be serving more destinations from the area," he continued.

"The local consumer will have more alternatives and more places to travel by bus," Crawley continued.

Coastal Family Health Centers finds temporary location on Dunbar Avenue

By DENA BISNETTE

Coastal Family Health Center has leased a temporary facility from a Bay St. Louis doctor, but is still looking for a permanent location in Waveland.

Melanie Allen, communications director for Coastal Family Health Center, said the Hancock County location is scheduled to open Sept. 7 at 797 Dunbar Avenue in space leased from Dr. Erlinda Alcalen.

Five other clinics are operated by the non-profit organization, which caters to low income patients. The facilities are located in Delisle, Gulfport, Biloxi, Vancleave and Saucier.

The Hancock County clinic had been scheduled to open July 1, but problems occurred in finding a location, Allen explained.

She said Coastal Family Health Centers accepted Dr. Alcalen's offer of temporary office space because the facility was immediately available and was already equipped as a clinic.

The organization's executive director, Kathryn Shanks, had been working with Waveland Mayor John Longo for about a year to locate the facility in Waveland.

"This is no slight on Waveland," Allen said, explaining that the selection of the Dunbar Avenue site was based "not on any other reason than the facility was immediately available."

"The mayor of Waveland has been so supportive to our efforts to locate here," she added.

The city had initially offered the clinic a choice of two donated sites after an early March meeting with Shanks, but would have had to provide a building.

Longo had discussed the possibility of having the city construct a building for the clinic and perhaps obtaining grant funding to help do so, and Shanks had stated at that time that Coastal Family Health Centers would be willing to look into a lease-purchase agreement with the city.

However, a state attorney general's opinion on the matter obtained by City Attorney Lucien Gex said that the city could not construct a facility for such an agency without actually participating in the clinic's operation.

Longo said the city was neither large enough nor ready "to go into the clinic business" and offered Coastal Family Health Centers a section of the Waveland Civic Center.

Allen said officials of Coastal Family Health Centers were pleased with the Coleman Avenue location of the civic center but found only 800 square feet of space available.

"We needed 3,000 square feet," she explained.

The facility staff is expected to include an internist, Dr. David Handshoe, who is from Hancock County; OB-GYN specialist Dr. Michael Gibney; a certified nurse-midwife, Judy Hughes; a pediatrician who is still being recruited and support staff.

"We were happy to be able to give Dr. Handshoe an opportunity to serve the people in the community where he grew up," Allen said.

Fees will be based on a sliding scale determined by the patient's income and family size. Federal funds are available to make up the difference between the actual cost of services and what patients are able to pay.

Allen said Waveland was chosen as a suitable permanent site because there is a large number of poverty-level people living in Hancock County and because the area is designated as having a health manpower shortage.

In addition, there had been a number of patients from Hancock County using the Delisle and Gulfport facilities.

Quotables by CUEVAS

We have mentioned many times how much one vote can make in an election and this was made evident in Tuesday night's election.

The race for Hancock County Board of Supervisors Beat Three ended up unofficially a tie, 1138 to 1138, yet there are a total of 43 affidavit votes to be counted by the Democratic Executive Committee tonight at 6 p.m.

On Wednesday the Democratic Executive began the task of certifying the affidavit votes.

Recently the rolls of qualified electors were recorded on a computer and in some instances names were placed in the wrong precincts. Many of the errors were corrected after the first primary.

In viewing television on Tuesday night we noticed several races where the candidates both received 50 per cent of the vote cast with only a few votes difference.

Another very close election involving two of Hancock's precincts was for District 47 State Senate showing unofficially a 44 vote difference in over 15,900 votes cast in the race.

So, as we have said before, every vote does count.

It seems people still have the habit of throwing litter along our roadways.

All of the litter is collected along US-90 in Bay St. Louis before the grass is mowed. It looks like it is only a few hours after the grass is cut when litter begins to show again.

This is a serious problem not only on US-90 but along every highway and street in our county.

It costs us taxpayers many dollars each year to have litter removed from our roadways.

People just seem not to give a care about how sorry litter makes a community look.

We know there are many concerned citizens who would like to see litter eliminated from our roadways, and if we keep trying possibly one day we will be successful.

Cochran says counties eligible for USDA emergency loans

Senator Thad Cochran (R-Miss.) says the Department of Agriculture has declared 29 Mississippi counties as natural disaster areas and therefore eligible for Farmers Home Administration emergency loans, due to damage to fruit and nut crops caused by frost and freeze this spring.

Cochran, a member of the Senate Agriculture Committee, said that the disaster declaration was due to bad weather that occurred between March 15 through April 15.

In addition to the 29 counties, the Senator said 41 other Mississippi counties were named as eligible because they are contiguous to one or more of the 29 primary counties. This means that family farmers who produce fruits and nuts in the 41 counties also may qualify for emergency loan assistance.

The People's Business

Weekly Editorial
From Mississippi Economic Council

Though much was left undecided in the first primary election earlier this month, one thing was made clear. The people of Mississippi want change.

More than 800,000 state voters went to the polls to cast ballots for a full slate of candidates, topped by the governor's race. The vote total likely would have been even larger if weather conditions had been better.

Voters were presented with a choice of eight men in the Democratic race for governor and two on the Republican side. Also on the ballot were races for state offices, legislative seats, and county posts.

After the final count, remaining in the governor's race were two Harvard-educated Democrats and a Republican with a degree from New York University. All three have touted a progressive approach to government.

It has been said that the state cannot lose in this contest—that all three of the remaining gubernatorial candidates would bring a high level of influence and competence to the job.

Issues like education, jobs, more efficient government, and economic development have been key during this campaign.

The state's business community has been pushing for advancement in these areas and will continue to do so under the next governor's administration.

The people of Mississippi have indicated that they want change—a fresh approach to government.

The next governor of Mississippi will be expected to aggressively pursue that change.

The "last place" tag needs to be retired.

IN
By Cong. Trent Lott

You always hear speeches in Washington about compassion and having a heart. What that usually means is that working Americans are going to be hit again to pay for some costly federal programs.

I heard that argument a hundred different ways this past week. "We must buy more federal land to preserve it for the future," one of my colleagues told me. "We must fund arts and humanities to preserve a proscribed cultural level," another insisted. "We must fund foreign aid at a higher level so our allies will be able to help us. We must fund urban programs; we must save the farm credit program. We must pay for unlimited drugs for older Americans," and on and on.

Where does it end? With socialism?

Many of these programs are appealing and perhaps even necessary. But there are limits on what the federal government can and should do, even on how much we can spend for defense which is the primary responsibility of the federal government.

The usual Washington solution is to raise taxes. But the people who bear the brunt of tax increases are those in the middle income brackets, whether it involves raising tax rates or increasing gasoline taxes.

The people I try to remember during these arguments over compassion are the barber in Poplarville, the insurance agent in Petal, the boilermaker in Pascagoula, the nurse in Gulfport, the Hercules worker in Hattiesburg, the paper mill workers and furniture store owners all through South Mississippi.

These folks work hard, go to church, raise their families and pay their taxes. They know what it is to forge success. Their faith is simple and true—faith in hard work and just rewards, in education and savings, in compassion and strength.

Some of us must have a heart for them, too!

The state's largest business organization has announced plans to carry its statewide leadership training program into communities across Mississippi.

"Mississippi has many potential leaders in its communities. We want to find them and put them to work," said Kenneth Milam, chairman of the Mississippi Economic Council.

Milam and Jackson State University President Dr. James Hefner announced the publication of a leadership training manual and a seminar in September to assist local groups in setting up leadership training programs. Hefner is chairman of the council's leadership training programs. Hefner is chairman of the council's Leadership Mississippi Committee that oversees the statewide program that has trained potential leaders for 13 years.

Milam said the success of the statewide program has spawned others on a community level.

"That positive response and the increasing requests for help in developing leadership training programs has led MEC to develop a model plan for leadership programs," he said.

Hefner said leadership training is our investment in the future.

He said the manual will serve as a blueprint for developing the state's leaders.

The manual also includes a checklist for program development.

The seminar to be held Sept. 24 in Jackson will include a step-by-step explanation of setting up a program; a panel discussion from representatives of existing leadership training programs; and small group sessions on various aspects of program development.

For further information on the manual, seminar, or setting up a program, contact Nancy Dear, MEC Vice President for Administration, P.O. Box 1849, Jackson, MS 39215-1849. (601) 969-0022.

Eyes on Mississippi

By Bill Minor

JACKSON—Evidently Theodore G. Bilbo is part of the state's history most Mississippians would rather forget.

Last week marked 40 years since the fiery little racist U.S. Senator and former governor was buried in a country churchyard near Poplarville in what was considered one of the biggest gatherings of political figures ever seen in this state.

Bilbo's funeral also was my introduction to Mississippi politics—the first assignment I covered as a young reporter at the beginning of a long journalistic career in this often perplexing state.

Significantly, no newspaper stories to my knowledge last week noted the 40th anniversary of Bilbo's passing, which must say something about current attitudes.

Of course, the Democratic gubernatorial runoff and several other races were holding center stage at the time.

Still, it is hard to imagine that Bilbo, the Mississippi politician who held more of the state's top public offices than anyone in state political history gets so little attention any more.

Not only had he been a United States Senator, but he was one of only two Mississippi political figures of this century who was elected to two full terms as governor. For added measure, he had also served as lieutenant governor.

Bilbo died amid controversy, much as he had lived in a political career that spanned four decades.

At the time of his death Aug. 21, 1947, he had not been permitted to take his seat in the Senate because of a pending investigation that he had intimidated black voters in his 1946 election.

At the time, Bilbo was nationally regarded as the leading racial demagogue in Congress. He had been declared by Life Magazine the "Worst Senator," to which he replied: "I should be glad they put me at the head of the class. They didn't say I was weak or ineffective."

Many who were at Bilbo's funeral back in 1947 expressed the belief that Bilbo's death had closed the book on racial demagoguery as a political way of life in Mississippi. They, of course, were to be proven quite wrong for the next quarter of a century.

The main topic of speculation among the dozens of political figures who gathered to pay their last respects to "the Man," as Bilbo was often called, was who would inherit his political mantle and lead the faithful.

Some, including the minister who preached the funeral oration, sought to pass the Bilbo mantle to his son, Theodore G. Bilbo Jr. who was then a regular army officer.

The younger Bilbo, however, had no taste for politics and declined to pick up the legacy.

A special election was called in November, 1947 by then Gov. Fielding L. Wright, who declined to appoint anyone to temporarily fill the vacancy because so many of his friends wanted the appointment.

One loyal Bilboite, Jackson attorney Forrest Jackson, who had represented the controversial senator in the Senate investigations over his seating, came forth as the candidate who would pick up the cudgels of his fallen leader.

Among the five other candidates, the one with the least-known political name was a scholarly, country judge named John Cornelius Stennis, from Dekalb. Few, outside the Mississippi State College alumni gave the modest Stennis any chance.

But when the votes were counted in the "high man wins" special election, Stennis, certainly a far-cry from the acid-tongued Bilbo, surprisingly came out first and was awarded the Senate seat.

Forrest Jackson, the self-proclaimed Bilbo faction candidate, came in third. Thereafter, the thousands of Mississippians who had remained loyal to the loquacious Bilbo in good times, and bad, would never again be able to regroup as a political force.

Thirty-five years later, what to do with Bilbo's gnomelike bronze statue which stood for over two decades in the middle of the state Capitol rotunda, became a subject of controversy when the Capitol was renovated.

Finally, then-Gov. William Winter (or Elise Winter, some believe) took the matter in his own hands and put Bilbo out of sight in the east wing of the Capitol. There he remains today.

Bay utility customers view M. M. as 'Monthly Madness'

Dear Editor,

I had read in the paper a while back of the upcoming utility increase in Bay St. Louis.

Well, today I received what they term the new billing system. To say that I was shocked by what seems to me a "huge" increase would be an understatement.

The M.M.—Minimum Monthly service cost is $42.15 for so many gallons and so many cubic feet, then, as it was explained to me at City Hall, you are billed for even more by going over the M.M.

So a bill at M.M. turns into a monster of $72.74.

With this starting in the summer, us Po-Folks are in for a hard winter. Many elderly and disabled live alone and many have little income and barely make it without extra increases.

Are they expected to pay $42.15 when they have really only used maybe $25?

I don't know about the mayor and city council members who control these increases, but I'm sure a lot of folks, other than myself will have some difficulty paying them since everything seems to go up except our salaries.

I'm told that you can't fight the system. Why is it that "the system" as they are called can always justify and without problem pay these ongoing increases?

The water isn't any better, the gas from the stove cooks the same.

As far as I can see, this can't possibly benefit all of us.

M.M. should mean 'Monthly Madness,' for it's sure to make a lot of us mad—monthly.

When it rains and water stands in my driveway, gas bubbles in the water from the street gas line, kids pass and have lit it.

This has been this way for two years.

They (City Hall) say don't worry about it, that it doesn't go through my meter.

It seems to me not safe since it's less than four feet from the bumper of the car.

Who's billed for these bubbles—it's costing someone!

Bayou Caddy Boat Launch Restoration... Hancock County Ms

Port commission seeking grant funds for Bayou Cadet Marina improvements

By BRENDA HEATHCOCK

The Hancock Port and Harbor Commission is seeking grant funds to make improvements at the Bayou Cadet Marina.

Jeff Taylor of South Mississippi Planning and Development District gave a presentation Monday at the commission's regular meeting on the planned improvements.

Included in the proposed project is repairs to the existing launch at the site, bulkheading parts of the entrance canal to eliminate bank erosion, construction of loading and unloading docks along the bank, expansion of parking space and other minor improvements.

The boat launch is owned and operated by commission and is the only public launch in this area of the county which provides access to the open Gulf.

"Currently the launch is in a dilapidated condition," according to the description of the project need in the grant application.

There is limited room and facilities for short term tie-up, loading and unloading and inadequate parking area for vehicles and trailers, the description continues.

"Bayou Cadet and the launch is located at the end of Beach Road where most of the commercial seafood industry activity is located in Hancock County. The existing launch is used by a large number of commercial and recreational fishermen and should be improved to adequately handle the demand for quality launching facilities," according to the application.

Taylor said the project qualifies for $20,000 funding on a 70-30 matching basis.

The county must furnish $6,000 in matching funds and the remainder of the matching amount may be provided by in-kind services, he added.

"The proposed project will be undertaken as a joint venture between the Hancock County Port and Harbor Commission, the Board of Supervisors, and the Gulf Fishermen's Association at Bayou Cadet. In-kind labor will be provided to construct the parking area and general site work," the application states.

Also, renovation and construction of the launching and docking facility will be contracted out to a private construction firm.

Crucial

wanted to eliminate any possibility of a mistake.

Ladner was not present at the courthouse Tuesday when votes were counted. However, Medford was and he requested that the number of affidavit votes in each of the Beat Three precincts be publicly read.

The affidavits included three in Crane Creek, seven in Standard, five in Dedeaux, 19 in North Bay West and nine in Diamondhead.

The largest number of affidavits were voted in precincts where Medford had received the most votes.

In North Bay, Medford led with 263 votes over Ladner's 237. In Diamondhead, Medford's home precinct, the challenger cleared 578 while Ladner received only 86 votes.

Ladner led in the three rural precincts, with 253 in Crane Creek, 295 in Standard and 267 in Dedeaux, his home precinct. Medford received 93 votes in Crane Creek, 140 in Standard and 64 in Dedeaux.

The total affidavits for all three of the rural precincts totaled 15, less than in North Bay West alone.

Affidavits can be voted for various reasons under state election laws. Any person whose name is not on the voter registration books provided at the polls but who claims that he is legally registered or has been illegally denied registration may vote by affidavit.

Affidavit votes are sealed by the pollworkers and must be checked against voter registration records before they can be accepted, under Section 23-15-573 of the Mississippi

Code. Until they are certified, the affidavits, along with all the ballot boxes from Beat Three, are being kept in a locked, sealed office in the Hancock County Sheriff's Department.

Bourg said the affidavits should be counted by Thursday.

In the event that some of the affidavits are unacceptable and a second tie results, the most recent law regarding the determination of such an election is Section 23-15-601 of the Mississippi Code.

Contained in that law is language applying the procedure prescribed to any county office including supervisor.

The law states, "If it appears that two or more candidates for Representative of the county, or

In commenting about his victory in the primary Mike Ladner said, "It has been a very long three months, good work and support which has made this possible. I appreciate all the help, I could not have done it by myself."

"I want to thank Mr. Travirca for a clean campaign," Ladner added.

Travirca was surprised at Ladner's win but felt the victor had a lot of people working for him in the campaign.

Ladner now faces Republican Mike Anthony in the November General election.

Of the five Hancock County Supervisors, three have been defeated and a fourth is involved in a very close race to probably be decided tonight on the affidavit vote count.

The county's fifth Supervisor Sam Pernicaro, who won unanimously in the first primary still faces federal charges of nine counts of bribery, extortion, mail fraud and conspiracy to commit mail fraud in the Operation Pretense investigation by the FBI.

'A Prairie Home Companion' goes to the fair

Late last summer, Garrison Keillor and his entourage traveled to the Minnesota State Fair and did a special broadcast of "A Prairie Home Companion," complete with the sounds of a parade and screams of Ferris wheel riders in the background.

This edition of "A Prairie Home Companion" will be rebroadcast on PRM at 5 p.m. Saturday, Aug. 29, and again at 2 p.m. Sunday, Aug. 30.

The program features a songwritten especially for the fair, called "Wheel's Goin' Up," western harmonies by "Riders in the Sky," some special fair sponsors and Keillor's recitation of the 87 counties of Minnesota at a record-breaking speed.

The highlight of this edition of "A Prairie Home Companion" is, as usual, Keillor's monologue, which this week is the tale of his Aunt Myrna and the cake-baking contest.

PRM (Public Radio in Mississippi), a division of Mississippi ETV, is broadcast statewide on the following

FM frequencies: Biloxi, 90.3; Booneville, 89.5; Bude, 88.9; Greenwood 90.9; Jackson, 91.3; Meridian, 88.1; Mississippi State 89.9; and Oxford, 90.3;

Senator's Mobile Office to visit Coast counties

Senator Thad Cochran is dispatching his mobile office staff to six Mississippi Gulf Coast area counties on Sept. 9 and 10.

On Wednesday, Sept. 9, the Senator's mobile office staff will be at the Hancock County Courthouse in Bay St. Louis at 11 a.m. the George County Courthouse in Lucedale at 11 a.m. and the Stone County Courthouse in Wiggins at 1:30 p.m.

Citizens who may wish to discuss an issue before the 100th Congress, or a problem involving a federal agency, are invited to stop by and confer with the Senator's staff.

Interested persons should contact the Chancery Clerk's office for exact location at the courthouse in their respective area. The mobile office will be at each stop for about one hour.

The visits by Senator Cochran's office to Bay St. Louis, Gulfport, Biloxi, Pascagoula, Lucedale, and Wiggins on Sept. 9 and 10 are part of the constituent service program he initiated to help provide direct contact between his office and citizens and officials at the local level in the state's 82 counties.

MSU alumni, development offices reorganized

Mississippi State University's Alumni Association and Development Foundation have recently adopted a more streamlined organizational structure.

"New staff members and a new emphasis on a team approach by the two organizations have increased their capabilities to more efficiently meet the promotion and fund-raising needs of the university," said Vice President for the Administration Billy Ward.

Bookkeeping and accounting functions of both the Alumni Association and the Development Foundation were recently transferred from the university's comptroller and are now handled by a business manager for alumni and development.

Filling that new post is David E. Easley, former business manager for the Brookhaven Public Schools.

Easley, who was raised in Port Gibson, also has been accounting manager for Copiah-Lincoln Junior College and controller for the Port Gibson office of Universal Associates Inc., a land surveying and mapping firm.

He received a bachelor's degree in accounting from Mississippi State in 1978 and is currently completing work on a master's degree in business administration.

Creation of the business manager's position "is really going to help the Alumni Association and the Development Foundation," said Dr. Jim Hemphill, executive director of the foundation. "It takes some of the responsibilities off of the directors and allows us to do the things we need to do."

Also named recently to a new position on the Development Foundation staff is Kathryn L. Hayes, who became coordinator of giving.

Hayes, who has served since 1982 as field director for the Alumni Association, will now direct the university's annual giving programs and will have marketing and research responsibilities in the areas of major gifts, corporate giving and planned giving, as well.

The Jackson native is a 1980

Mississippi State graduate with a degree in marketing.

Joining the Development Foundation as field specialist recently was T. Steve Winesett, formerly an admission counselor for the university.

Winesett will be working with current and prospective donors to university programs, and will also serve as liaison with Alumni Association officers and other volunteers. Winesett, who was raised in Laurel, received an accounting degree at Mississippi State in 1985.

Dr. E. Mac Huddleston became associate director of the Development Foundation earlier this summer. He had been a faculty member and administrator in the College of Veterinary Medicine at Mississippi State since 1981.

In his present position he has primary responsibility for the major giving program and assists in overall administration of the foundation.

Taking on new responsibilities in both the Alumni Association and the Development Foundation earlier this year was Charles Weatherly, who had served for 20 years as director of the association.

Weatherly is now coordinator for new programs and special events for both units, and is also working with the Development Foundation in the planned giving area.

The search for a new director of the alumni Association is currently underway, with an appointment expected about Sept. 1. Associate director John Corrojo is interim director. Also to be named this fall will be a field director for the Association.

"We're trying to develop a team concept for promoting the university," Hemphill said. He noted that giving to the university is up in all areas this year compared to the same point in 1986.

The number of contributors is 600 ahead of last year's pace. Contributions to the university in cash and deferred gifts totaled about $11 million in 1986.

Better Mississippi fishing

Pond management related to use

By Patti Drapala
Extension Service

Proper management of farm ponds can create better bass and bream fishing for Mississippians.

Proper management can only exist when the pond owner decides how often the farm pond will be fished, according to Dr. Tom Wellborn, head of wildlife and fisheries for the Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service.

"The pond owner must make a decision on what his goals are," Wellborn said. "If he wants to provide recreational fishing for a few friends, then the fishing pressure is minimal. If he wants to heavily harvest the pond, then the pressure is heavy."

When a farm pond is minimally harvested, the number of pounds of fish taken from the pond is greatly restricted. Maximum harvest requires additional owner considerations, such as providing adequate food for larger numbers of fish.

The ratio of bass to bream is important in either situation.

"If minimal harvesting is the purpose, then for every pound of bass removed, 10 pounds of bream also must be removed," Wellborn said. "If the proper ratio is maintained, good fishing is possible for a long time."

A heavily fished farm pond must have 5 to 10 pounds of bream removed for every pound of bass removed to balance the ratio.

When the bass-to-bream ratio is not balanced, the farm pond can become overcrowded. Fish have to compete for food, a situation which can reduce or eliminate desirable populations from the pond.

"Overcrowding of fish is one of the easiest pond problems to correct," Wellborn said.

Pond fertilization can become a hard-to-correct problem if goals of the pond owner are unclear. If the pond is heavily fished, then the pond owner should provide adequate food to fish left in the pond to maintain the proper ratio.

Many fish such as bass feed on smaller fish, and both large and small fish may depend on pond plant life for food. A farm pond incorrectly fertilized may not sustain enough single cell plants for the fish to eat.

If the pond contains acidic soil, the phosphorus in the fertilizer cannot be used by pond plants. The pond owner must maintain fertilization by liming the pond. Lime allows pond plants to use phosphorus.

A farm pond with adequate fertilization has good "bloom," according to Wellborn. The bloom is the color imparted to water by single cell plants. A good bloom, which causes pond water to look opaque, controls weed growth in the pond because sunlight cannot penetrate to the bottom where weeds can grow.

Farm ponds also benefit with the addition of structure—objects in the water such as scrub trees and gravel. Structure attracts fish because it offers protection and spawning opportunities.

"Many farm ponds have had all cover removed, with absolutely nothing in the pond," Wellborn said. "Fish are randomly scattered, and the fisherman hopes he puts the bait in front of them."

Structure indicates where fish may be in a farm pond and fishermen do not waste time searching for them.

Sewing for children can be fun as well as economical. You do not have to be an expert to make a satisfactory child's garment. After all, any sewing "mistakes" you make will not be around very long, since children outgrow their clothes so quickly. If you are a beginner, choose simple patterns. Save the harder ones for later.

You must like and enjoy sewing to do a good job. If sewing makes you nervous or edgy, you would be better off to purchase your child's clothes ready made. However, if you like to sew, the possibilities are limitless. You have an advantage in that you can clothe your child at half the ready-to-wear cost.

Fabrics and Trims

Choose durable fabrics that will take a lot of wear and tear. Firm knits and firmly woven fabrics such as denims, poplins, broadcloths, and corduroys are good choices. Avoid loosely woven and knitted fabrics that may snag or catch.

Children prefer soft, absorbent fabrics that do not "scratch." Polyester cotton blends provide comfort, durability, and easy care.

Children like bright colors: red, blue, and yellow. They also like designs. Printed designs, stripes, and plaids should be small and in scale with the child's size so they will not be overpowering.

A touch of trim can make a garment special to a child. In selecting your pattern and fabric, consider the type of trim, also. Decorative machine stitching, embroidery, smocking, ribbons, braid, rickrack, appliques, ruffles, lace, and bias binding are some trimming possibilities. Whatever type of trim you select, be sure that care requirements are compatible with the fabric.

Patterns

Children's pattern types are based on body measurements, not the child's age. Because children grow so rapidly, measurements need to be taken often. Here are the different pattern types designed for children:

Babies—designed for infants who are not yet walking. Patterns for babies are chosen primarily by weight and length. There are two sizes, newborn and six-month.

Toddlers—designed for a figure that is taller than a baby but shorter than a child. Toddler pants have diaper allowance. Choose size closest to chest measurement. Toddler patterns often apply to boys and girls.

Children—has the same chest and waist as toddler but is taller with wider shoulders and back. Many patterns suit boys and girls.

Girls—designed for the young figure without bust development. These patterns have no bustline darts. The height ranges from 4' 2" to 5' 1".

Boys—designed for the just-developing figure that has outgrown children's sizes. The height ranges from 4' to 4' 10".

For children's and girls' patterns, choose the size most closely matching the chest and back waist length measurements. See the Body Measurement Chart for exact pattern measurements and sizes.

Growth Features

Children outgrow their clothes rapidly. However, home sewers have an advantage over this problem. They can add "growth features" into children's garments waistline seam, you can increase the waistline of the bodice and skirt by one inch. Add 1/4 inch to each side seam of bodice and skirt, tapering out from the original seam lines. Omit back darts, if any. Construct the garment as instructed in the pattern. Then make a casing of bias tape along inside back waistline seam and insert narrow elastic. Stitch one end of the elastic side seam. Adjust fullness to fit the child, then fasten the other end of elastic inside the garment. Let the elastic out as the dress needs to grow, or while making them. Growth features allow the garment to expand or grow with the child.

Sewing Clothes for Children

Add growth tucks above the hem line on a child's dress to allow for lengthening. You must add length for tucking before you cut the pattern. For a decorative effect, try three tucks in a row, each 1/2 inch deep. This will allow you to lengthen the garment three inches without redoing the hem. Use machine basting so tucks can be easily removed later.

Growth tucks can also be hidden in the hem. Again, the tuck is made with machine basting to make it easy to remove when lengthening.

If the garment has long sleeves, try adding similar growth tucks on the lower part of the sleeve as a design touch. Make tucks about 1/4 inch deep. Tucks are put in after underarm seams are sewn.

You can also add growth tucks at the shoulders to increase shoulder width. Two 1/8 inch tucks on each shoulder can be added to either the inside or outside of the bodice. Alter both the bodice front and back pattern pieces before cutting fabric. Release tucks as the child needs width.

You can make a waistline tuck just above the waistline seam following the same method. Add one or two inches in length to the bodice before cutting the pattern. If darts are involved, extend length of darts as well. Before attaching bodice to skirt, sew in the growth tuck. Depth of tuck will be one-half the width of the addition. Press the tuck up. To let bodice length grow, release tuck and cover any fade marks with a pretty new sash, belt, or trim.

Some fabrics may show stitch and press lines when let out. If this happens, you can use various types of trims to cover the lines. Be sure to apply the trim elsewhere on the same garment so it will not look tacked on.

For boys, you should consider trouser length. You can let down extra-wide hems as length is needed. Jumpsuits and jumpers made with suspenders have a built-in growth feature. By lowering the buttons on the suspenders you can add length to the garment as the child grows taller.

When making slacks, shorts, or skirts an elastic waist band is an ideal choice because it will expand and give extra room. Allowing a generous seam allowance on the pants will allow for an adjustment at side seams, provided the fabric does not show the original stitching lines.

If you choose a pattern with a completely remove the elastic.

Reinforcement

Strengthen or reinforce garment areas that will receive a lot of stress and strain by using these techniques:

Button and buttonhole areas—add a strip of interfacing or self fabric to wrong side of garment where buttons and buttonholes are.

Pocket areas—at top of each pocket on wrong side of garment, place a folded piece of seam binding. Baste in place. Stitch through all thicknesses from right side of garment. Or, extra reinforcement can be done by bar tacking or stitching pocket ends.

Knee and elbow areas—use a lightweight knit or woven fusible interfacing. Cut interfacing patch 3 to 4 inches long for elbows and 4 1/2 to 7 inches long for knees and wide enough for 1/8 inch to be included in each seam allowance. Fuse, following manufacturer's instruction, to elbow and knee areas on wrong side of garment before stitching seams together.

Sleeve caps—use a double row of stitching around the sleeves to give them extra strength. Stitch at 5/8 inch seam allowance and then again at 4/8 inch.

Seams—use flat-felled or double-stitched seams on boys and girls pants and other garments for more durability and longer wear.

Seam finishes—on fabrics that ravel, use a sturdy seam finish to prevent excess and extreme raveling.

Weekly State Crop Report Covering week of Aug. 15-21

Record pounds of catfish processed

Hot weather problems of oxygen loss and off-flavor in some catfish ponds will not keep Mississippi farmers from processing a record number of pounds in 1987.

About 139 million pounds of catfish have already been processed in the state, a 31 percent increase over the amount processed the same time last year, said Dr. Thomas Wellborn, head of the Wildlife and Fisheries Dept. for the Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service.

About 220 million pounds or more of catfish are expected to be processed by year's end. In 1986, 212 million pounds were processed.

Catfish farmers are aerating (mechanically stirring) their ponds so fish will have adequate oxygen. If ponds are not monitored for oxygen loss and aerated if necessary, catfish will suffocate and the farmer could lose his crop in a matter of hours.

"As the temperature goes up, it decreases the ability of water to hold oxygen," Wellborn said. "Water temperatures have been running in the high 90s, so farmers have had to aerate."

Hot weather also increases the occurrence of off-flavor because it encourages growth of bacteria, fungi, algae and other living organisms which can cause off-flavor in catfish flesh.

"If the fish don't taste quite right, then they won't be bought," Wellborn said.

State farmers are getting 60 cents a pound for catfish sold at the pond bank but an increase in feed prices has slightly eaten into that profit margin.

Catfish feed prices were $197 a ton in January. They have risen now to $226 a ton because of rising soybean and fishmeal prices.

"The catfish industry in the state is looking good, although the farmers can stand lower feed prices and lower energy costs," Wellborn said.

In other agricultural news, too much rain in south Mississippi has kept farmers out of their fields while some counties in the central and northern part of the state still have not had enough rain.

"Grain sorghum is looking good, but continued rain could cause molding and harvesting problems for us," said Roger Jones, Perry County Agent.

Some corn and soybean fields are flooded in Perry County, and hay harvesting has been slowed not only in that county but also in Copiah, Lauderdale, and Pike counties.

Also representing the food pantry are, far right, Ina Piazza, and, from left, Beverly Praetorius and Julianne Andressen. Piazza reported during the month of July, 95 families or a total of 2407 persons had received groceries from the food pantry. "This is the highest number we have ever served in a month," she said. The food pantry continues to seek donations of food items or cash. (Staff photo by Brenda Heathcock)

Black college alumni group will spearhead '87 fundraiser

JACKSON—Black college graduates are being asked to dig deeper this year in an effort to increase financial support for higher education through an annual fundraising project entitled, Payback '87.

The project, sponsored by the Council of National Alumni Associations, is urging nearly one million graduates of historically black colleges and universities to send financial donations to their alma maters before the last Monday in September—the annual observance of Black College Day.

"The payback project is taking on a new twist this year," said Hilliard L. Lackey, project coordinator and director of alumni affairs at Jackson (Miss.) State University. "Veteran supporters this year are being asked to contribute $25 or more and first-time givers should respond with at least $10 to their alma maters."

College alumni directors hope to raise $8 million through the project to help historically black colleges and universities pay delinquent accounts and establish academic scholarships, said Lackey, who also serves as vice president of CNAA.

The project, which was initiated in 1985, has raised over $10 million in the past two years.

"The overwhelming success of the payback project is its simplicity," added Lackey. "It merely asks that persons who have attended these institutions give something back so that these institutions can continue their academic quest of educating a portion of the nation's youth."

Contributions should be made payable to the institution of the donor's choice, earmarked "Payback '87," and mailed to the school's Office of Alumni Affairs. Non-alumni gifts are also being accepted.

CNAA is a group of college alumni administrators that is focusing attention on the need to preserve black institutions of higher learning.

For more information on Payback '87, please contact Lackey at the JSU Office of Alumni Affairs, P.O. Box 117746, Jackson, Miss. 39217 or telephone (601) 968-2281.

BWYC, PCYC teams 'scrimmage' for 1987 Lipton Cup event

Bay-Waveland Yacht Club's 1987 Sir Thomas Lipton Challenge Cup team has completed a two-day elimination series with Pass Christian Yacht Club.

The BWYC team's four skippers this year will be Dennis Stieffel, Marc Eagan, Peter Merrifield and Randy Santa Cruz.

All four men have distinguished themselves this year in sailing.

Eagan won the National Match Racing title with Stieffel and Santa Cruz as crew.

Santa Cruz placed second in the Flying Scot North Americans and Merrifield was captain of the University of Texas' 1987 Sailing Team and sailed Mallory Semifinals.

BWYC will host this year's Lipton Regatta on Labor Day weekend. Bay-Waveland has won this prestigious trophy for seven out of last 10 years, but the team expects strong competition from yacht clubs as far south as Panama City, Fla.

and as far north as Arkansas.

Approximately 25 GYA clubs are expected to send a Flying Scot, four three-man crews and numbers of spectators to represent their local sailing programs.

The Lipton Regatta is a favorite among sailors and spectators alike because of the non-sailing activities combined with the racing.

Great food, parties, and a dance are a few of the bonuses for those who attend this year's event.

Rocks readying for 87 season under guidance of new coach

Head Coach Ken Lyons of St. Stanislaus High School in Bay St. Louis reports the school's 1987 football season will begin on Friday, Sept. 4 with a home game against Pope John Paul of Slidell.

Lyons and his staff, composed of assistant coaches Rod Herring, Larry Ramsey, and Jerry Spell, are working with the squad in developing the fundamental skills of blocking and tackling.

"Our attitude has been very good, and morale has been high," stated Coach Lyons. "The size of our offensive line is above average, but we need to improve our footwork speed. Our defensive line is smaller but has above average footwork quickness."

The Rockchaws will institute a two-platoon system with separate offensive and defensive personnel.

Lyons feels the platoon system will give the team good depth. The second string offense and defense, however, is generally young, as many are in the ninth grade. Some athletes will play both ways, at times.

"Our priority this year is to have a winning season, but first we must establish a base of sound fundamentals and team discipline," said Lyons.

"When the present athletes develop, I plan to use a run-pass slot I offense. Defensively, we are implementing an eight-man front concept with pressure tactics, rather than a soft-read defense," added Lyons.

The coach said he is impressed with SSC and its facilities. "St. Stanislaus is the best professional and athletic environment that I've been involved with. It is very positive and progressive. SSC may be the best-kept secret in Mississippi," commented Lyons.

Lyons' duties include heading the physical education department and teaching PE courses, along with a weight training class and a sixth grade social studies class.

One of Lyons' priorities is building team confidence and school spirit at SSC. "To the athletes, we will challenge them and make demands and set goals along with insisting that we execute our techniques correctly. School spirit is a contagious enthusiasm, usually caught by word of mouth from the players. I also feel pep-rally talks and public appearances can help."

The Rockchaws scrimmaged Saturday, Aug. 15 and again on Saturday, Aug. 22.

"The defense did a commendable job. The offense had its problems, but were corrected to my satisfaction on the following Monday afternoon," the coach stated.

Lyons also praised his three assistant coaches. "They have had to adapt to a new system and to challenges, as well. But this has been the best 'new staff' that I have ever worked with."

Lyons emphasized the need for support among the parents and alumni of SSC. "My appeal is to 'hang in there' with us and to back us through the tough times that we are striving to overcome. To quote Darrell Royal, former coach of the University of Texas, 'If football did not demand sternness and toughness, then everyone would be a champion.'"

SUMMER WIND— Bay Cove Marina's forthcoming in-water boat show will feature the Summer Wind, the pilot model Talbot 48-foot yacht. The sleek custom built craft is manufactured in New Orleans, designed by John Cherubini and manufactured by Clay Talbot. The Bay St. Louis boat show will be staged on the Labor Day weekend.

Wildcats cut 15 hopefuls

POPLARVILLE—Pearl River College football coach Mike Nelson did not have a restful night last Thursday. Not at all.

Earlier in the afternoon his Wildcats had gone through a three hour full-scale scrimmage. What remained was the trimming of the Wildcat roster from 73 to 58 players—three above the maximum allowed.

"That was one of the toughest things I've ever had to do," said Nelson. "There were 15 athletes we wanted to keep but we had to let go. We were here till midnight," said Nelson, who is beginning his third year at the Wildcat helm. "There were seven or eight players who probably start at other schools but we could not keep them."

The Wildcats, 7-3 last season, began fall drills with 97 players. Nelson said dwindling that number down to the required 55 was not easy. "We have always been against the required 55 ruling Nelson said. "I've not changed my mind about that one bit."

"We not only lost some good football players, we also lost some excellent students. What we tried to do is create some sort of balance," Nelson said. "I feel like you need to be something like 30-25, sophomore and freshmen. At some of the skilled positions, you need freshmen to gain playing experience so you don't have to rebuild over and over."

"We had 30 sophomores returning from last year, but some of them didn't make it."

Nelson feels good about his team's progress, thanks in large part to the return of eight starters on offense and five on defense.

"We had a real good week of work," he said. "We have the biggest team we've ever had since I've been here. We have an opportunity to have a great season."

The real question mark for the Wildcats is at quarterback, where three players emerged from Thursday's cut. They include Chris Collins (6-6, 195) of Grand Bay, Ala., Charles Kindred (5-10, 165) of Brooklyn and Scott Nease (6-0, 176) of Derper, La.

Four players are vying for playing time at the running back position.

At the top of the list is Thurman Geathers (6-2, 210), brother of New Orleans Saints defensive end James Geathers. Geathers rushed for 803 yards and three touchdowns as a freshman.

Joining him in the backfield competition are Hattiesburg's Roland Johnson (5-10, 212), who transferred from Jackson State, Anthony Richardson (6-1, 210) of Morgan City, La., and Anthony Jurich (5-9, 195) of Picayune.

The Wildcats concluded a two-day workout Thursday, registered for school Friday and resumed workouts Monday. P.R.C. opens the season Sept. 5 at home against Coahoma.

Corps dredging vital to nation's defense

MOBILE, Ala.—Everyone knows the Corps of Engineers dredges rivers and harbors, but few realize the importance of its dredging expertise to national defense.

Mobile District has, as part of the Navy's Gulf Coast Strategic Homeporting Plan, four Navy Homeport sites located within its jurisdiction—Mobile, Pensacola, Gulfport and Pascagoula.

Dredging will be required for turning basins for the Navy ships on Corps-maintained channels at Mobile, Pensacola and Pascagoula Homeport sites.

Volumes of material to be removed at these sites are approximately five million, 13 million, and one million cubic yards, respectively.

The dredging at Mobile is required to accommodate five Navy vessels which include two guided missile frigates, two guided missile destroyers, and one mine sweeper. Pascagoula will base four ships—two guided missile destroyers and two guided missile cruisers.

The work at Pensacola involves deepening the existing channel to accommodate the active line aircraft carrier Kitty Hawk which will replace the training carrier Lexington in the Navy's flight training program.

Mobile District has consistently maintained the depth of the Pensacola channels for the Navy to accommodate the Lexington.

These dredging activities are imperative to the viability of the nation's Gulf Coast defense installations.

The Army's Mobile Detachment of the Military Traffic Management Command depends on the Gulf Coast harbors maintained by the Mobile District in scheduling shipping of DOD cargoes both in peacetime and in times of emergency.

In October 1984 the Corps in an exercise dubbed Project CERF (Corps of Engineers Reserve Fleet) tested its ability to move on site quickly should a military emergency arise that required the dredging of a shipping channel.

The Mobile District had the commercial dredge Eagle on site in Mobile Harbor in less than a week—a process that normally takes up to three months.

Mobile District again tested its ability to support emergency military operations during the Bold Eagle Exercise at Hurlbert Field, Fla. in October 1985.

The District dredged channels for landing of heavy equipment and supplies from the Gulf of Mexico onto Santa Rosa Island.

In addition to dredging two channels 80 feet wide and 250 feet long through the outer bar in the gulf to the water's edge, the district excavated a trench in Santa Rosa Sound for an underwater pipeline linking an offshore jet fuel barge with the mainland.

The exercise was one of the Readiness command's periodic tests of its capability to deploy and sustain forces at an overseas area of operation.

It gave the Mobile District an opportunity to demonstrate its capability to provide support for off-loading of a jet fuel barge where there was no port facility.

The Gulf Intracoastal Waterway, from the Rigolets in St. Tammany Parish, La. to Apalachee Bay at St. Marks, Fla. is 378 miles of protected waterway used by barge traffic.

Mobile District has responsibility for maintenance dredging, snagging, maintaining and repairing erosion control structures, bank stabilization, conducting water control studies, diking of spoil areas and maintaining jetties at inlets from the Gulf of Mexico.

The Tactical Air Command at Tyndall AFB, Fla. gets its JP4 jet fuel by barge through the Gulf Intracoastal Waterway.

Another defense program which depends on this canal is the Mississippi Air National Guard at Biloxi, Miss.

A channel runs off the Gulf Intracoastal Waterway through Biloxi Bay, up Bayou Bernard to barge in fuel, through Biloxi Bay and Back Bay to the turning basin at the end of the Industrial Seaway north of Gulfport, Miss.

In fiscal year 1988, the Mobile District will remove approximately 42 million cubic yards of maintenance and new work material from 22 different inland and coastal projects.

A United Way Agency

Hancock Center enhances seniors life style

Editor's Note: Following is the third in a series of articles being presented by the Sea Coast Echo on agencies which are partially funded by the United Way of Hancock County. The local United Way is planning a Sept. 25 kickoff for its 1987 fundraising drive. Lonnie Clayborn of Waveland is chairman of this year's drive. The goal is $65,000.

HANCOCK COUNTY SENIOR CITIZEN CENTER

By Eve McDonald

Our Center will be starting its 16th year of operation in February of 1988. We have become an integral part of the community for our older citizens, and have initiated many ongoing programs which have been picked up by other organizations.

At present we serve over 250 different age 60 plus senior citizens per month. Some of them only come once a month and others come daily. Some of our people drive in and others are picked up by our buses through our contract with Coast Area Transportation.

We are open five days a week from 7:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. Monday through Friday, with the exception of stated holidays.

The programs we provide are Recreation, Transportation, Meals, Information and Referral. We operate with 3 full time and 4 part time staff members, but we are complemented by about 25 volunteers who provide real enrichment to our program.

We have many classes of art, crafts, ceramics, woodworking, macramé, bible study, crochet, silk flowers, counted cross stitch, quilting and others.

Volunteers deliver 25 meals a day to those unable to cook for themselves, and we serve 33 meals a day to those unable to cook for themselves, and we serve 33 meals a day at the Center for those who express a need for socialization, meal, or those coming in on our bus to spend the day here.

We do some special transportation for those who only need to go to the grocery in Bay St. Louis or Waveland. We also provide transportation to the doctor, or necessary appointments. Our drivers will also pay local bills, go to the bank, pick up items from the drug stores, etc. for our clients.

The telephone line is often busy with calls from the general public asking for information of all kinds. We try to assist and direct callers to the proper agency if we cannot help them ourselves.

Many of our seniors have trouble with filling in forms, reading mail, understanding complicated questionnaires, etc. We try to assist them in all of these matters. We also help them to understand advertisements which are misleading to them.

We pass on warnings to them of schemes of persons trying to enter their homes or getting them to sign up for inferior products.

Another area we feel is of help to senior citizens is the opportunity to hear educational programs. We have had nutritionist, insurance, lawyers, nurses, law enforcement, and others to present interesting talks and demonstrations.

Several home health agencies have provided nurses who have come to the Center on a regular basis to take blood pressures and discuss home health with our participants.

We are grateful to the community for the support they have provided us. We have many individuals who regularly donate items to the Center as well as businesses and professionals.

Our main financial support comes from the United Way of Hancock County, Hancock County and the City of Waveland. The city of Bay St. Louis provides us with our building, utilities, maintenance, and some supplies. Thanks to all of you it's working.

According to old Irish belief, if you must circle something, you should do it east to west. Going west to east was believed bad luck.

I BET YOU DIDN'T KNOW

Brought To You By Jim Henrie

Here's an amazing football fact...A son and his father were BOTH voted "Coach of the Year" in college football the SAME year! Johnny Majors was voted "Coach of the Year" for major-college football in 1973 when he coached Pitt—and his father, Shirley Majors, was voted "Coach of the Year" in small-college football for his coaching at Sewanee that same season.

One of the strangest things that ever happened in baseball was when a batter hit a fly ball that NEVER CAME DOWN! It happened at the indoor Minneapolis Metrodome on May 4, 1984 when Dave Kingman of Oakland hit a high fly ball that got caught in the netting of the fabric ceiling of the dome. This ball stuck there and didn't come down. The umpires decided it was a ground rule double.

Incredibly, a team in the National Football League once played a whole game without gaining ANY yardage! Seattle, in a game against the Rams in 1979, had an official total of MINUS 7 yards rushing and passing for the entire day...Unbelievable, but true.

I bet you didn't know...Auto World has engine overhaul kits available, featuring Hastings piston rings, at prices you can't beat! Remember, we're under the Flag!

The mark of a truly good and, if you will, gourmet cook manifests itself not so much in fancy, expensive concoctions as it does in presentation of inexpensive dishes made special through creative touches and use of skilled flavor combinations.

Thrifty cooks have long "tamed" the toughness of less expensive cuts of beef by use of marinades to enhance flavor and to make the meat more tender, and have used wines and broths for braising the less tender cuts.

And time after time, these thrifty gourmet cooks count on mounds of fluffy rice to extend the servings of meat!

Consider that classic of steakdom, Steak Diane. You needn't weep at memories of Steak Diane on your table as you pass up the King's-ransom-priced top steaks at the market—that good old standby, round steak, when properly tenderized and accented, fills the bill—without running the grocery bill sky high!

I usually prefer to tenderize steaks and other cuts of meat by marinating them in olive oil, Burgundy wine, and black pepper-corns or coarse-ground black pepper, and I have used red wine vinegar for the purpose at other times. Braising in wine and/or broth also helps, but if you insist, you may use a meat tenderizer instead.

And, if you delve into the brandy bottle for generous slashes—for the steak, not for you—and add the touch of fresh mushrooms and/or tomatoes, you've a dish fit for just about any occasion. Here's:

SKINFINT GOURMET'S STEAK DIANE

1½ to 2 lbs. top round steak, an inch thick (no thicker for this)
½ cup butter or margarine
½ cup brandy (optional)
½ cup sliced green onions, with tops, of course

1 tsp. each Tabasco and Worcestershire sauce (less, if you prefer milder taste)

Dash of black pepper, salt optional
Cut the steak into six serving portions, and pound well with a mallet or the rim of a saucer until they're about half an inch thick. (At this point, you may wish to marinate the meat in wine and oil for an hour or more, as I do, or you may wish to go ahead without waiting that long, by sprinkling the meat with unseasoned tenderizer according to directions.)

Whatever—when you're ready to proceed, melt three tablespoons of the butter over high heat in a large, heavy skillet, my trusty cast iron for me, and as soon as the butter's bubbly, sear the steaks quickly on first one side, then the other, just a minute or so per side, for me at least.

Lower the heat, splash the brandy over, along with the hot sauce, onions and pepper, and if you wish, cook the steaks a bit more, to your taste. Remove the steaks from the pan, and keep them warm while you add the remainder of the butter to the sauce in the pan, and stir together. When the butter is melted into the sauce, pour over the steaks and serve with rice (or potatoes, if you insist, but it's rice at my house.) If you're feeling fancy, toss some almonds or other nuts into the rice.

And, if you want to go a bit farther, add cut up tomatoes and fresh mushrooms as you're cooking the business—and don't think the fresh mushrooms are an extravagance—check it out sometime

I'm mad about fresh mushrooms, and find that I get more servings from a carton of fresh mushrooms than I can from cans or jars—and there's no comparison in taste, to my palate!

Incidentally, I have successfully used underblade chuck steaks tenderized and pounded thin for my Steak Diane at times—and when the budget's really on the ebb tide side—what's wrong with Chopped (Hamburger) Steak Diane? (Six Servings.)

BELLONA CLUB

As Lord Peter Wimsey and his companions discover—just before dinner at the Bellona Club—that old General Fentiman has died right in his favorite armchair, the smell of a murder becomes aromatic, and Wimsey sets out to uncover just who checked old Fentiman out of the Bellona Club for good.

"The Unpleasantness at the Bellona Club" stars Ian Carmichael as Wimsey and can be seen on "Murder Most English" at 7 p.m., Saturdays, beginning Aug. 29, on Mississippi ETV. First shown on public television in 1973, this popular series also has been aired several other times on Mississippi ETV, most recently last summer.

Fentiman is found dead early in the evening on Armistice Day, 1922. On the same day, the general's long-estranged sister, Lady Dormer, also dies. A strange twist to Fentiman's holiday death, however, is that the highly patriotic general was not wearing his poppy. Wimsey then realizes that the time factor in the case is of the utmost importance.

Veterans' Job Training Act deadlines extended

The Veterans Administration has announced that the Veterans' Job Training Act has been extended and that eligible Korean and Vietnam Era veterans have until December 31, 1987 to make initial application for placement under the program.

Jeff R. Ryker, Director of the Jackson VA Regional Office, said that employers now have until June 30, 1988, to place veterans in on-the-job training positions under the program.

Since inception of the program in 1983, a total of 420 employers have been approved for the program while 387 veterans have actually participated within the state of Mississippi.

Under this program, the VA will reimburse qualified employers 50 percent of an eligible veteran's starting hourly rate of pay for up to nine months, 15 for disabled veterans, to a maximum reimbursement of $10,000 per veteran.

Korean and Vietnam Era veterans and employers interested in participating should contact the VA Regional Office or local state employment service office. The VA Regional Office toll-free number is 1-800-682-5270.

Narcotics News

Donald Butler
Director
Bureau of Narcotics

Q: Is true that alcohol is a drug? (S.G. Belmont, MS)

A: Yes, alcohol is a drug. As a matter of fact, it is the most abused drug in the United States. Any chemical that is a mind-altering substance and changes the way a person thinks and acts is a drug. It, like any other drug, causes harmful effects when abused. It accounts for 50 percent of America's highway deaths. Alcohol is usually not considered a drug due to the fact that it is legally and socially accepted among society.

Q: Why did the legislature stop the drug education program in the schools instead of expanding it? (R.J. Quitman, MS)

A: The drug education program was abolished from the curriculum in the late 70's. We do not know all the reasons this program was abolished, but one of the reasons was due to funding and it was also believed at that time not to be effective.

The Bureau of Narcotics strongly supports that drug education should be reinstated in the school system.

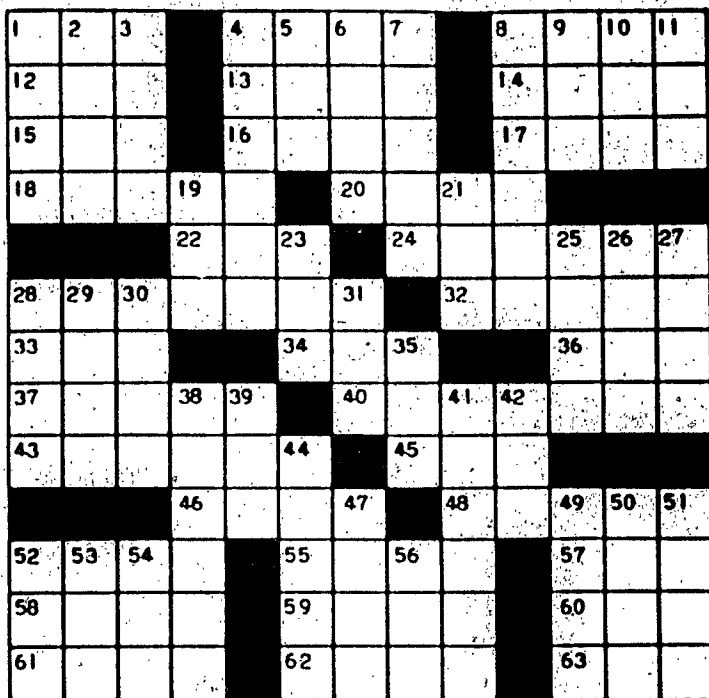

We feel that educating our children about the dangers of drugs will in time help deter drug trafficking.

This will not be a short range goal. The problem with drugs did not start overnight and will not end overnight.

However, educating our children is one way we feel, will help bring an end to this problem that swept our nation.

Newspaper publishers continue campaign against illiteracy

WASHINGTON, D.C.—The American Newspaper Publishers Association Foundation reports a second thrust to its Press To Read campaign, a three year assault on illiteracy in the United States.

The 1,400-member newspaper publishers organization will begin an outreach program with major education groups in order to develop cooperative projects with those organizations.

In announcing the new thrust, Charles T. Brumback, chairman and president of ANPA Foundation, said, "The primary focus in the program's first phase was to create awareness within our industry about the nature of the national illiteracy problem. This we have accomplished. Hundreds of newspapers have implemented projects to help eradicate illiteracy in their own home towns. We are now ready to begin the challenging new task of broadening our efforts."

Brumback is president and chief executive officer, Chicago Tribune Company.

Brumback further stated, "The newspaper industry recognizes its responsibility to readers and potential readers. We will apply our energies to support the experts who will do the actual teaching of reading."

ANPA Foundation has targeted International Literacy Day—Sept. 8—to launch its new effort. The national celebration of International Literacy Day is sponsored by the International Reading Association, an organization whose 72,557 members are professional reading educators. On Sept. 8, leaders of major education organizations will be invited to explore possible cooperative projects with the Foundation.

In the first phase of its literacy program, ANAP Foundation released "Newspapers Meet the Challenge," a handbook designed to assist newspapers in starting literacy projects.

The Foundation also published a "Showcase of Newspaper Literacy Projects," which highlights individual newspaper efforts, offered a Literacy Creators Workshop for newspaper executives and began cooperative efforts with other newspaper organizations.

Several joint projects between ANPA Foundation and other groups already are under way. An on-going program with the American Association of Retired Persons, implemented through newspaper articles and a jointly sponsored ad and poster, actively encourages AARP's 23 million members to volunteer in the literacy effort.

The Foundation also is working with Cartoonists Across America, an organization of newspaper cartoonist, to promote literacy T-shirts.

A popular item among youngsters and adults, the T-shirts show two dinosaurs reading under the caption "Read. Avoid Extinction." They can be customized for other organizations that want to promote reading.

Finding college money requires hard work

For students heading off to college this year, the most economical step is to go public.

Not only do four-year public institutions cost less than half as much as their private counterparts, but their costs have also been rising at a slower pace, according to Beverly Riggs, a family economics specialist with the Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service.

For the 1987-88 academic year, tuition, room, board and fees averaged about $8,700 at private schools versus $3,800 for public institutions.

When the cost for books, transportation and personal expenses is added, the total comes to about $10,200 at private colleges and $5,600 at public ones.

Although college costs increased about 6 percent over the past year—about triple the rate of inflation—that still is considerably less than the 10 to 11 percent increases reported in the early 1980's.

Although the above figures represent averages, the cost of education is different for each person. Riggs said various factors make a difference.

"Spending habits formed at home can make a big difference," she said. "Students will have an easier time getting through college on a limited amount of money if they have already had the experience of providing for their personal needs."

The number of years of additional education, the location of educational institution and the type of training offered influence the initial cost of college.

The amount of social affairs students take part in make a difference in costs. Dress customs may increase or decrease costs.

"The size of family income also can make a difference," Riggs said. "Costs are usually less when the family has less to give. A student from a lower-income family will spend less for nonessentials and carefully choose the way to spend what he has rather than spend a lot and wonder where it went."

Living at home nearby can save over living in a dormitory, apartment, or fraternity or sorority house. But, the cost of commuting will increase.

Any reduction in the length of time a student must spend in school brings an important reduction in costs. One program for trimming college costs by saving time is the College Level Examination Program. This program tests knowledge acquired outside the classroom through experience or independent study. Every college has its own rules for giving the tests and for the number of hours of credit that can be earned. Check with the admissions office about this program.

To learn the actual costs involved in the different types of education at different schools, Riggs said to do some "comparative shopping." Write to several schools for catalogs and information on expenses such as tuition and living costs and financial aid programs.

Use this information and some estimates of your own to get an idea of what a year's total expenses will be. Be sure to include things such as: tuition, fees, housing, food, books, equipment and supplies, and lab fees. Also, add an estimate for personal expenses, such as recreation, travel, clothing, grooming, health care, contributions, organizational dues and any miscellaneous expenses.

"If needed, parents and students should seek financial aid from any and all sources," she said. "This requires intensive research, but the searching will pay off."

Loan and grant money are available from private and public institutions. When applying for college, contact each college's financial aid office, as financial aid officers can give advice on where to look for money.

The public library is an excellent source for information about college costs, ways to finance one's education, and job opportunities for college graduates. Libraries also have information on state and private sources of aid.

Many places of employment and labor unions have programs to help pay the cost of education after high school for employees or members. Other sources may be foundations, religious organizations, fraternities or sororities, and town or city clubs.

Also included are community organizations and civic groups, such as the 4-H club, the Kiwanis, Jaycees, the American Legion, the YMCA and the Girl or Boy Scouts. National Merit Scholarships and scholarships from the National Honor Society are available to students with high grades who qualify.

Don't overlook any organizations connected with your field of interest (for example, the American Medical Association or the American Bar Association). These organizations are listed in various directories of associations available at the public library.

To finance an education and not go broke, look for a package of aid. For example, money might come from loans as well as grants, scholarships, personal savings, gifts, savings from summer jobs and work-study employment.

Apply for aid early. Help is awarded on a first-come, first-served basis. Apply for financial aid from a college by the January before the fall when a student expects to begin classes.

Etoile Dubard's business is mending young lives

HATTIESBURG—Etoile DuBard is in the business of mending young lives. She embraces children with varying degrees of language disorders — youngsters who have been "wired wrong" — and helps them overcome the physiological communication problems that otherwise would prevent them from joining life's mainstream.

In her work for the past 25 years as director of the University of Southern Mississippi's School for Children with Language Disorders (SCLD), DuBard frequently has encountered children whose intellectual and creative skills have gone untapped because of their inability to communicate.

She says the USM program — the first of its type in Mississippi and only one of two presently existing in the state — not only helps youngsters overcome their language problems, but provides guidance, counseling and "a few boxes of Kleenex from time to time for crying episodes by the parents."

Aphasia, she pointed out, is a condition that concerns the loss of the use of symbols for communication and certain other functions. Apraxia is a "motor system" defect that prevents a person from tying words and sentences together in a logical sequence. Both conditions are major factors relating to language disorders in children. "The neurologists say it's not the brain, per se, not this portion of the brain or that portion of the brain," noted the energetic, 66-year-old professor of speech and hearing sciences.

"Somewhere in between, there are connecting units, pathways that are not functioning right," she said. "A vernacular description of it is, 'The kid is wired wrong.' It's not an emotional disturbance ...

"But regardless of their intellectual potential, they need an opportunity for the kind of program and intensity that will let them become what they can become," added the native of Grenada County, who says she "dug my fair share of potatoes" as a youth.

It was as an elementary classroom teacher for nine years in Texas, Florida and Mississippi that she became aware of and interested in the plight of children with language disorders. She returned to school and began conducting the research that led to master's and doctoral degrees in her chosen field of study.

"I found out that 30 pieces of silver weren't that valuable," she said. "I just took it as a sort of modern-day burning bush, if you will, that somebody needs to recognize and do something about it."

While running a speech therapy program for the Natchez and Adams County school systems in the late 1950's DuBard began part-time studies and later conducted two years of intensive study at the Central Institute for the Deaf in St. Louis.

It was there she learned the "Association Method" of working with children who have language disorders. She said the multi-sensory, teaching/learning strategy — then in its pioneer stage of development — went beyond the traditional visual/auditory teaching approach by incorporating tactile (sense and touch) and "motor kinesthetic" methods.

That's where the wiring comes in," she explained. "As they (the children) see it and say it and say it and hear it, they learn to write it. I pulled all of this together and tied it to theories that didn't exist earlier, but which supported it as a correct teaching method..."

"We use written symbols, we use pictures, we use chalk and paper — the equipment is minimal," she said. "We use a lot of auditory training in connection with all of this. We teach them to see a letter, to know what that letter's sound/symbol relationship is, and to produce it in accurate speech."

At the invitation of Dr. Robert Peters, a speech science expert, DuBard joined the USM faculty in 1962 and established the School for Preschool Deaf and Aphasic Children. Upon her recommendation, the name was changed to the School for Children with Language Disorders several years later. From an initial staff of only herself, DuBard now heads a staff of four full-time and one part-time language speech pathologists.

The school's $100,000-plus annual operating budget is funded through the state Department of Education's Minimum Foundation program nine months out of the year, and contributions from the United Way agency help pay operating costs during the summer. The school operates under federal guidelines of Public Law 94-142 and is regulated by the state Bureau of Special Services.

The USM school has provided help to hundreds of youths ranging in age from 3 to about 13 over the years, and DuBard said many of them have overcome their handicaps to go on and win college degrees and/or become successful in business. She said the public schools take care of many of the less severely impaired children.

"The children we take in here are so severely impaired, they would not be able to survive," DuBard said, noting the USM school presently is working with some 32 children from several counties' and school districts of this region.

"Remember in Faulkner's 'Sound and Fury' the character, Benjie, who could understand but couldn't talk?" she asked. "Benjie probably had very severe apraxia motor problems of speech. Those problems have been around for a long time."

"But I've viewed this whole thing as my mission — to create peace within a child, within a family..." she added. "We have a commitment, first to the children's needs — children wherever they happen to be, now and in the future

UNO names fourth chancellor

Gregory M. St. L. O'Brien, provost and vice president for academic affairs at the University of South Florida, Tampa, was appointed the fourth chancellor of the University of New Orleans Friday, July 25, by the Louisiana State University Board of Supervisors.

O'Brien, who is expected to take office by Sept. 1, succeeds Dr. Cooper R. Mackin, chancellor since 1983, who will return to full-time teaching as professor of English at UNO.

The Board, which took this action during its regular meeting in Baton Rouge, also passed a resolution of commendation to Mackin for his service to UNO and granted him the title of Chancellor Emeritus.

O'Brien, 42, has been a member of the University of South Florida administration since August 1980 when he was appointed vice president for academic affairs. He received his dual appointment of university provost in October 1983. O'Brien also serves as professor in three disciplines, management, social work and psychology.

Prior to these appointments, O'Brien served as provost and professor of psychology at the University of Michigan, Flint, 1978-1980; dean and professor of the School of Social Welfare, University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee, 1974-1978; and director and associate professor, Human Services Design Laboratory, School of Applied Social Sciences, Case Western Reserve University, Cleveland, 1970-1974.

O'Brien received his doctoral and master's degrees from Boston University in 1969 and 1968, respectively, and a bachelor's degree from Lehigh University, Bethlehem, Penn. in 1966.

Dr. Allen A. Copping appointed a 13-member search committee last November to seek a successor to Dr. Mackin. The committee narrowed the field of some 120 applicants to five finalists in April, recommending three for Dr. Copping's consideration in May.

The two other finalists, in addition to O'Brien, were Betty L. Siegel, president of Kennesaw College, Marietta, Ga., who recently withdrew her name from consideration, and Gerald R. Stairs, provost and vice president for academic affairs, California State University, Chico.

Dr. Copping recommended O'Brien to the LSU Board of Supervisors for the UNO chancellorship during the Board's regular meeting Friday, July 24, and the board approved the recommendation. The vote was 11 for with two abstentions.

UM to offer Chinese this fall

Starting in the fall 1987 semester, the Department of Modern Languages at The University of Mississippi will open its doors to Chinese—spoken by one billion of the world's population and one of the world's oldest languages.

"We needed to add an Oriental language to our curriculum because it has never been taught here before," said Dr. Richard Klein, chairman and professor of modern languages. "Chinese was the logical choice because we could get a good teacher and materials are easily available."

Dr. Klein said that even though there is a relatively modest demand for Chinese, a demand needs to be created for it. Since it is one of the most important languages in the world, it just cannot be ignored, he added.

Beginning Mandarin Chinese will be geared toward speaking, said Guilan Wang, the native Chinese teacher of the course. Mandarin is the more widely spoken form of Chinese in mainland China.

Chinese is not a very difficult language, Wang said. Students in the beginning Mandarin course will be introduced to phonetic transcription ("pinyin"), which provides the basics for spoken Chinese. Students in the course will be able to learn more about the Chinese culture by meeting and interacting with students from China.

TRIBUTE TO CATS

A documentary exploring and paying tribute to cats—something cat lovers do every day—will air again on Mississippi ETV at 7 p.m., Sunday, Aug. 30. This popular documentary was first shown on "Nature" last December.

This "Nature" film, "Cats," compares the behavior and adaptability of domestic cats with their wild cousins, reviewing the widely varying attitudes towards cats over the 5,000 years of their domestication.

From ancient Egypt to present-day America, cats have always been associated with humans—yet man's relationship with them has extended from worshipping to associating them with the devil to making them pampered pets.

The film also covers wild cats in the Galapagos, farm cats in Illinois, street cats in New York and house cats in Florida.

"Cats" also will address the cat's reputation for being untrainable. New research has shown that, given persistence and much handling from an early age, cats are just as trainable as circus lions and can be more obedient and responsive than most owners would ever guess possible.
